

Glory For Girls

Glory for Girls is a natural skin care line for today's savvy teen girl that offers products that are good for you and the environment. The San Diego-based line seeks to eliminate the need for girls to choose between designer brands that contain synthetic and irritating ingredients and natural brands that are bland or medicinal. "From an early age, girls begin to experiment with beauty products and cosmetics as they start to define their own unique look. I want that experience to start with the safest products available," says founder and CEO Brittany Clotfelter. Glory for Girls currently carries everyday cleansers, lip balms, scrubs, sunscreen, deodorant, and clarifying lotion. All formulas are biodegradable and 100 percent natural — no parabens, sulfates, petrachemicals, artificial colors, or artificial fragrances. The company's Web site also provides an interactive online store with activities and resources for girls. (760/918-0078, www.gloryforgirls.com)

Pucker Up

What better time than Valentine's Day to give a little extra love to your lips? Age takes its toll on your pretty pout and the skin surrounding it, but a handful of simple cosmetic procedures can take years off your appearance. According to Alexander Ataii, MD, of Laser Clinique, the feathery lines above the lip ("smoker's lines not always related to smoking") can be minimized with spot laser treatments. He uses Deep FX, but Fraxel re:pair is also a popular option.

For deepening nasolabial folds — those lines running from the sides of the nose to the mouth — he suggests synthetic fillers such as Eleveess, Juvederm, and Restylane. Jodi Sawyer, RN, swears by Restylane for plumping up the lips, and delivers 70 injections per month. "Restylane builds your collagen," she says. "The longer you use it, the less you'll need it, so you'll always have kissable lips."
